Increasing globalization, networking and interdisciplinary teamwork present special challenges to education. Thanks to a balanced combination of content and international orientation, the degree course provides excellent opportunities for entering mid-sized and large international companies in industry as well as in the service sector and consulting.

The degree program covers hard skills – e.g., course work in economics, management, technology, and languages – as well as “soft skills,” comprising but not limited to social and intercultural competencies in an international context. Teaching methodologies include group and project work.
